R. I. Fences In Depot Grounds At Mokena as Safety Act

The Rock Island railroad has adopted a new safety measure at Mokena. Autoists have been in the habit of parking their cars on the depot grounds near to the main line tracks, often times not being more than 5 feet from the tracks. Danger that trains might hit cars too closely parked to the track has caused the company to fence off the depot grounds so any passengers can go in and out on same. Trucks and cars loading or unloading freight or express must now drive to the rear of the depot. The fence posts were set Wednesday by the section men.

Bremen Health Council Notes

The interest in diphtheria prevention is growing we had ten new children start taking the course last Thursday, and others are just beginning to ask about it, so we think that as soon as the present group are finished we will arrange to start another group about February 2nd.

We have been doing school inspection the past week and find that there has been a large number of physical defects corrected since our last examination, which means there will be keen competition in the health contest next June, as every defect corrected scores one in favor of the candidate for health championship, also the child who has had the Toxine-Anti-Toxine will be one length ahead in the race.

We are glad to say that the Bremen township Health Council are taking an active part in the present campaign against diphtheria. Mrs. M. J. O'Gady of Oak Forest came over and helped with the children at the Welfare Station where the treatments were given. Mrs. H. E. Smith of Midlothian is doing good service by way of publicity. Mrs. Wm. Funk and her associates of Tinley Pk. are going to spread the information in their part of the township through the Mokena News-Bulletin. Mrs. W. Roissner of Markham and Mrs. F. Bless of Posen have not been heard from recently, but we feel sure they are doing good work in their own fields.

MOKENA DEVELOPMENT & HARD ROAD IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

Ask Will County Supervisors to Pave Wolf Road

The paving of Wolf Road in Will County from the Will-Cook County line to the Lincoln Highway is the paramount issue now. Above is the sample of a poster sticker with the map on the reverse side which the Mokena Development and Hard Road Association is circulating to create sentiment in favor of using the gas tax allotted to Will County for the paving of the gap. The Will County Board is being petitioned to consider this proposal at their meeting to be held next week. The following letter from Gov. Len Small to L. G. Bruder, chairman of the Mokena Development Association is of very much import and interest just at this time:

Dear Mr. Bruder: Your letter of November 30th is acknowledged. I suggest that you bring your proposal to use gasoline tax funds to improve the road thru Mokena to the attention of the Board of Supervisors of Will County. While any proposal for the expenditure of gasoline tax funds is subject to the approval of the State Department of Public Works and Buildings, the initiative lies with the County Board. It will, therefore, be necessary that you first obtain favorable consideration from the County Board before the matter may properly come before any State Department.

I assure you that, should Will County propose to use its apportionment of the gasoline tax funds on the Mokena road, such proposal will have the earnest consideration of the Department of Public Works & Buildings.

Sincerely yours,
LEN SMALL,
Governor

Worth Good Fellows Active

The Goodfellowship Club which has become the outstanding organization of the community held its first meeting of the year last Tuesday night.

This organization composed of the leading men of the village under the leadership of Harold Ferrin has done an outstanding piece of work in the community development. In its brief existence it has done more for the community than any other organization in the history of the community.

Through its efforts a beautiful model home has been erected. This is the first real demonstration of community cooperation. It has sponsored the community Christmas tree for the last two years. Due to its efforts a standard size 50 foot lot was assured from subdividers. Thru this alone the organization saved the community from a serious mistake. It has done much to bring about better government and civic betterment and has acted as business men's organization for the community.

The club was organized about two years ago by Mr. Sanders as a part of his plan for church and community development. At that time he called together 12 of the leading men of the community and presented the idea to them. It was received favorably so Mr. Beck of Evanston was invited out to speak to the group and presented a program for the organization. From that time on the club has been a vital part of the community life.

STORY FROM THE START

On the verge of nervous collapse, due to overwork, Gay Deane, successful New York artist seeks rest at Idle Island. She rents a cottage, the "Lone Pine," from an island character, the "Captain," and his sister, "Auntie." Andover, "administrator." Gay finds the cottage is tenanted by an elderly lady, "Auntalmiry," who consents to move to another abode, the "Apple Tree." On an exploration of the island Gay, standing on the seashore, is horrified by the appearance of the drifting body of a drowned man, which she nerves herself to bring to the shore. A bullet wound in the temple shows the man to have been murdered. Gay makes her way to the "Captain" with the story. Returning with him to the shore, they find no body there, and Gay's story of the incident is set down to an attack of "nerves." Gay, unable to convince her neighbors of the truth, draws a picture of the face of the dead man, intending to send it to the authorities. She meets a stranger, to whom she tells the story and shows the picture. He asks her to let him take it, but Gay refuses. Next day Gay finds the picture has been taken from the cottage. "Rand" Wallace, wanderer, and considered something of a "black sheep" by the islanders, surprises Gay at household tasks. Gay's acquaintance with Rand ripens into affection. Rand leaves the island on business. Gay determines to stay for the winter.

"Didn't he ever come back?"

"He died, dearie. Died away. But I had Buddy then. But Buddy went, too. Could I have a little more sugar, dearie?"

That was all. They talked of other things. Auntalmiry's gentle interest was just as it had always been, her easy amiability, but after that flush of feverish hope she seemed pale and worn with her age.

The next day Rand came, and they two, Gay and Rand, drifted into a routine of joyous companionship and love. Frankly and trustfully they professed full sympathy and understanding in each other's whims. Gay joyed to be in love, but brooked no thought of marriage, demanding freedom, she said, freedom for work. Rand, too, admitted satisfaction in the arrangement, craving freedom from the very thing that she desired, freedom for freedom's sake, he called it.

If sometimes Gay wondered if love built on foundation so slight could long endure, she hushed her doubts. She was very happy, and she dreamed of long years of this same happiness for both, freedom for each for the things that each desired. She would come to him, he would come to her, they would summer together in this cool and lovely place.

September drew swiftly, goldenly toward its close. September is the death of summer in the northland. The hotels on the island were already closed for the season, the summer shops locked into their storm windows, the shore cottages deserted. Still Gay lingered. Between herself and Rand had been no suggestion of parting, no hint that the season was over, the time of separation at hand. The island was lovely in September, lovely and wistful and willing. Gay would not let herself think of leaving.

She sat alone in her window-seat one afternoon and watched the sunset as it faded swiftly and darkness crept over the land. An hour passed, two hours. The dusk had deepened to night. And then, with one of her impulsive changes, she sprang to her feet, wanting brightness, wanting light. With her hand outstretched to press the button, she stopped, suddenly motionless, holding her breath.

Pressed hard against her window on the eastern side, the side of the forest, she saw it again, that face of yellow parchment with the seamed scar beneath the slanting eyes. As she looked it faded away into the darkness from which it had come.

With its disappearance came sudden activity, flaming anger.

She ran to the window and flung it wide.

"Hello," she called. "Hello there!"

There was no answer to her call, but, staring intently, she saw among the shadows of the wood one shadow that moved silently farther into the recesses of the forest, and merged at last into black. She closed the window thoughtfully, locked it and lowered the blinds.

Gay had a pistol, a handsome monogrammed one, which it was her pleasant conceit to keep loaded, well conditioned, ready for emergency use in the drawer of her desk near at hand. She had bought it during that memorable year abroad on one of her venturesome visits to London pawn shops, and with a sort of boyish vanity had carried it with her ever since. But it is indicative of the absolute confidence of her nature that in an emergency she always entirely forgot the weapon, reverting to the more feminine defense of screaming, calling or locking doors.

When she saw the yellow face at her window she did not so much as think of the loaded pistol, which she affectionately dubbed the "Baby, until she was safe behind the lowered blinds. Then she opened the drawer and looked at it.

"You're a useless old thing," she said impatiently. "Why don't you go off when there is some occasion for you, and scare the Peeping Toms?"

Expecting Rand, who came at his own caprice and kept her alert with expectation, she was not startled when, an hour later, there was a light knock at her door. It was past nine o'clock, but as his hours always suited his convenience, she only smiled tolerantly at his tardiness as she opened the door. But when she saw in the shadow, not Rand, but Ronald Ingram, she was startled into a little frightened cry, for which she quickly apologized with friendly laughter.

"Oh, you startled me. I—I was expecting some one else. Do come in. I am glad to see you again."

"What luck to find you," Ronald Ingram said with a warmth there was no mistaking. "I had no idea you would still be here. You are rather outstaying the summer, are you not?"

"Well—yes—a little, perhaps. But I was—quite ill, and I need—oh, a great deal of rest." Her face flushed with her feverish explanations, and Ronald Ingram studied her keenly.

"So many of the summer people have gone," he said slowly. "I should think you would be afraid to stay on alone. Especially after your experiences here. Was it in this room you saw the light—that night after you found the body in the cove?"

"Yes. In that window, right there."

"And the hand? Are you sure of that hand? Stretched out—"

"Of course I am sure. And when I came up in the morning, the sketch was gone. It was here, in this drawer." She lightly pulled out the drawer of the desk. Her pistol, businesslike, important, lay in full sight. "It was here. And the next morning it was gone. Doors locked, windows barred, just as I left them. But the sketch was gone. So I knew the poor dear wished to be left in peace and undisturbed."

"By George, you make my hair stand on end. And after all that, you stay on here, alone, unprotected—"

"Oh, he was a gentle spirit. He would not harm me."

He smiled and dropped the subject. He said he had come to Portland on business, and had come to the island with only a faint hope that he might find her, or, failing to find her, to get her address in the city. He said he could not bear to drop the little acquaintanceship, which to him had proved so sweetly charming.

Then he went quickly away, waving back to her as she stood in the lighted doorway beneath the tall pine.

Gay waited about for a while, hoping still that Rand would come, but

Character Shown in Likes and Dislikes

If you are ever in doubt as to whether an acquaintance would prove a good companion, there is one infallible sign by which you can make sure of the matter. When you talk to him notice whether he tells you first of something he likes or dislikes. If he is prone to air his dislikes you may be sure he will not prove a very cheerful companion. His mind is destructive. He is more concerned with pulling to pieces than with building up. Such a person has a tendency to shut up one's mind or put it on its guard against impulses and innovations. He has a sensitive nature that withdraws itself into its shell on the least impact of the common things about him. One will get nothing from him but grumblings and animadversions.

The person on the other hand who quickly makes you acquainted with

Too Much for Ostrich

The digestion of an ostrich is said to be about as powerful as that of a goat, yet there are some things that an ostrich cannot digest. This was proved by a recent post mortem examination of one at a zoo. The bird, it was discovered, had swallowed a can opener and this had caused its death. Among other articles found in the ostrich were two staples, a cent and a zoo attendant's hat badge.

finally she went upstairs and kicked off her slippers rather crossly. When, a little later, she heard his quick knock on the door below, and his blithe whistle above it, she caught up her slippers in her hand and ran downstairs, laughing, to let him in.

"Oh, good!" she cried. "A minute later and I'd have been in bed."

"I'd have been earlier, but—I was detained. You are all right, are you? Nothing has happened—y-o' haven't seen anything unusual?"

Gay sensed an undertone of anxiety beneath the lightness of his voice.

"Why, of course I'm all right. Of course nothing has happened. Why not? Or why?"

"Well, I saw a chap hanging about in the woods near your windows, sort of spying, sneaking around. I started up to see who it was, and he ran. Of course I chased him, and the two of us have hot-footed it all over the island. He was playing with me. Got me down to the city landing and dropped me like a hot cake. You haven't—"

"Oh, that must have been the Chinaman!"

"The Chinaman?" Rand's amazement was unbounded. "The Chinaman! What under heaven—"

"Oh, I must have told you about the Chinaman," she said evasively.

"You know darned well you never have. What about him?"

"Well, come and sit down. It's a long story—You are quite sure I haven't told you?"

Rand laughed. "Quite sure, you little liar, and so are you."

"Well, you weren't here when I came in. I was so tired, and sick I was a perfect wreck. Auntalmiry was here, and while she packed up I lay down on the couch here, and slept

"Didn't He Ever Come Back?"

Slept! It was the sleep of death for weariness.—She awakened me for dinner, and I ate, and went to sleep again. So she went away and left me sleeping.—Well, it was evening. And I felt—You know how one feels things in one's sleep—I felt eyes looking at me. I could hardly squeeze a look out beneath my lids, for the weariness. But I did. And in the dusk, faint and yellow, I saw the face of a Chinaman, thin pinched features, slanting eyes and a small sear scar beneath one eye. As I looked, the face just melted backward into the darkness, so I knew it was a dream, and went to sleep again."

Rand lighted a cigarette hastily but said nothing, and Gay went on.

"Well, you know how sometimes I sit, just dreaming, as the sun sets, until it is dark—I did tonight. And I jumped up suddenly to light the lights, although it was not entirely dark, and I saw it at my window, that window—same face, the very same. So it could not have been a dream."

"When was that?"

"Oh, hours ago! Just before the final darkness."

"But it was late when I found him—about an hour ago.—In the Books Must Have Air

Recent tests by the United States bureau of chemistry analyzing a large number of worn leather bookbindings, show that leather books need pure air and deteriorate when exposed to harmful sulphurous and acid impurities. Backs of leather books deteriorate quicker than the sides because ordinarily they are more exposed to light and impure air, the tests reveal. To prolong the life of treasured leather bindings, steps should be taken to prevent their deterioration through the absorption of atmospheric impurities, the bureau advises. Certain coatings and finishes, notably neat's foot and castor oil, are stated to be excellent for the purpose.

Rare and Heavy Metal

Osmium, a rare metal, is the heaviest substance known to science. It weighs 21½ times as much as an equal volume of water. In a general way osmium resembles platinum.

meantime, what? Any noises? Were you afraid—"

"No, Mr. Ingram was here."

Rand flicked the ashes from his cigarette thoughtfully. "Ah, Mr. Ingram.—Mr. Ingram.—I suppose you told me all about him, too. May one inquire, who is Mr. Ingram?"

"He is the man who— It was he who— It was Mr. Ingram who—"

Gay closed her lips stubbornly. She had often wished to tell him of the affair in the cove, but resentment had always forbidden the confidence. He should have asked her. She glanced at him furtively. His chin was set, and his eyes were anxious. Gay relented.

"Well, Rand, I suppose the family females told you—what happened in the cove?"

Rand smiled faintly, his fingers caressed her arm. Gay hardened again.

"I know they thought I was out of my head, but you surely do not believe any such nonsense."

"They thought you saw driftwood, a log or a barrel."

"How about my handkerchief? Did they think I put it on a piece of driftwood?"

"They thought— Now, remember, Gay, you did not mention the handkerchief until they reported there was no body. They thought—well, they thought you made it up to sort of carry out your story, make it hold water."

"What did you think?"

"I thought," he said tenderly, "that some time, in a moment of great confidence, my Gay would tell me about herself, and then I should know all."

Gay laughed, bent suddenly and kissed his hand. "You work me, out, rationally," she said.

"And Mr. Ingram—" he prompted softly.

"Well, then.—No, the cove comes first.—The reason I like Mr. Ingram is because if he is interested in anything, he talks about it. If he wants to know anything, he asks. He doesn't think other people are crazy just because they happened to see something he didn't happen to see himself.—Like the state of Maine," she said vindictively.

"And the cove—"

"Well, then. I slid down the rocks into the cove."

"Why, Gay, why? With a whole island full of accessible shore, why slide down the worst cliff in the bay?"

"Because I thought I couldn't," she answered promptly. "Because every body said one couldn't get down.—So I did."

Rand rolled his eyes heavenward. "A woman," he said devoutly. "Is heaven's greatest miracle.—She did, because she couldn't.—Go on.—Like your Mr. Ingram, I understand perfectly."

"Well, I tried to get into the club house, and I couldn't. And into the boat house, and I couldn't."

"You should have burned them to the ground.—If you couldn't get in, you should have."

Gay laughed. "Don't be silly.—Well, it was lovely in the cove, and I stood there and saw—It—coming in.—Rand, it was a man. He came in and with my two hands I pulled him up on the sand. There was a rope about one ankle, a stout rope, with one end dangling loose. He had been shot in the temple—here." She touched her brow with a slender finger. "The blood was washed away, but the hair was clotted about it. I laid his hand upon his breast, and put my handkerchief over his face. I called for help, but of course nobody heard me. So I went for the Captain. You know what happened."

Rand was impressed. She could see that.

"It sounds very—reasonable."

"Oh, Rand! When I went back the sand was wet where the body had lain. I showed it to the Captain, and he said it had splashed there. It couldn't have splashed. It hadn't splashed anywhere else."

"And Mr. Ingram—"

Gay smiled at his persistence. "Well, I sent the captain away. I could see every line of the poor, tired, anxious face, and the long thin hand, and the drenched hair. I took my drawing pad, and drew it, line for line. I was going to send it to the police department, so they could try to trace him.—Mr. Ingram was looking for a way down to the shore, and I went up and took him back through the woods the other way. I showed him the sketch, and he was greatly interested. He wanted it. He is a newspaper man."

"And now he comes again—"

"Oh, he came before—"

"Oh, I see." Rand's voice was quizzical.

"Oh, no, you don't see. Well, I met him on the rocks beyond the Little Club one day—he is very nice so gentle, gentlemanly, sympathetic—so I brought him home, and we had a long talk. He was thinking of buying up part of the island for exploitation, to build and sell, you know, things like that. He is very nice."

Rand's face was very stern. "Why didn't you tell me all this before?" he demanded curtly.

"Because if you want to be so darned close about everything, I will be darned close myself," she said smartly. "Rand, he felt terrible about the sketch.—Oh, I didn't tell you about that."

"What? What about it? What did the police—"

"Now, Rand, now is your chance to decide once and for all that I was entirely out of my head—am still, perhaps.—But Auntalmiry can swear to part of it. If she will, though she made me promise not to tell. She said folks would think queer of it."

"Gay!"

Howe About—

Helen of Troy ran away from her husband, and lived with another man. After years of fighting, in which thousands were killed, the husband captured Helen, and brought her back home.

The neighbors supposed his purpose was to boil her in oil. Instead, he forgave her, and again put her in charge of his home.

Did Helen appreciate the mercy? She certainly did not; she bossed her husband more cruelly than ever before, and made a fool of him on every possible occasion.

Some are like that; they regard forgiveness as license for still worse offending.

Our favorite meanness is to praise some things more than they deserve. Of every particularly successful man, it is said by his special enemies that his wife, or his head clerk "made him."

There is lots of nonsense in the world, but it is all plainly labeled. When a man tries to sell you a book he makes a large profit on and which will be a dead loss to you, there is a label on him as large as a barn door. There is also plenty of sense in the world, and it is plainly labeled, too. People talk sense quietly; nonsense is nearly always heralded in loud voice or large type. The next time you are in a crowd, try the experiment and see how easy it is to pick out nonsense.

The question has been raised what two men would do, who lived a solitary life in the wilds, and met each other for the first time. Pufendorf believed they would approach each other as friends; Hobbes, on the contrary, as enemies; Rousseau, that they would pass each other by in silence.

Pufendorf, of course, is right. Did not Robinson Crusoe welcome even Friday, a poor native who could not speak his language?

The critics are right; the people are an abused lot; and the critics are not any better than the rest of us.

There is no woman who gives us the radiant dreams that lurk beneath the word Woman; there is no wine that realizes the intoxication imagined by the word Wine; there is no perfume that our deceived nostrils find equal to the word Perfume; all is too little for the word All, and no nothingness is an empty enough vanity as to be that arch-terrorist word Nothing.—Emile Ténenquin.

It was the late A. C. Benson who told the story of a soul who arrived in the next world and, there finding all the more pleasant features of his earthly life reproduced without their accompanying responsibilities, observed from the cozy depths of a supersensual armchair, "I had no idea that heaven was so comfortable!"

—Where to another shade tersely replied: "It isn't!"

I sometimes think there is nothing a crazy man dreams might be done that cannot be done. I am half convinced that fiction is only a record of things we do not yet know about.

If cowardice had not been a strong characteristic of mankind, history would have recorded the existence of tyrants only to give grateful particulars of their execution. There is no excuse for an individual or majority submitting to tyranny; a remedy may usually be found.

The great disgrace in Nero's history is that the people submitted to him. That one man should go wrong is not surprising, but that millions should patiently submit to his tyranny and brutality for years, is surprising.

When his subjects finally revolted, Nero ran away like a whipped cur; a single man easily disposed of him.

I have never attracted the favor of any man to the extent that he was willing to divide his money with me. But everyone I meet is willing to divide his valuable ideas with me.

"Don't preach at a fire," H. L. Mencken lately said.

Still, when a house is burning because of some one's carelessness, and women and children standing barefoot in the snow, quite a sermon is being preached.

And if a neighbor appears who devises an efficient method of getting water on the fire, and the furniture out, he will preach a sermon that will not only do good at the time, but be long remembered for future usefulness.

Never deal with a rogue. On the appearance of trouble, he always turns state's evidence and makes your part of the transaction worse than it is.

Be very careful what you ask for in youth, lest you receive too much of it in your old age.—Goethe.

Ben Franklin used to say it is the disposition of men to tire of a woman, a guest, and rainy weather, in three days.

Broken Saw Traveled Far

Fragments of a circular saw crashed against the dwelling of Mrs. George C. Lailer in Portland, Maine, 300 feet from the starting point in the yard of Harold E. Campbell, when the saw, 36 inches in diameter, burst and screamed into shrapnel through the air. Another section embedded itself in the roof of a house 200 feet distant and in the opposite direction from that which the large section had traveled.

Getting There by Rocket

Scientists of many nationalities are interested in experiments which are now taking place with a giant rocket, which combines the features of a firework and an airplane. The scheme, which, though it sounds fantastic, is said to be practical enough in reality, is to shoot passengers across the Atlantic at a speed which the inventor, Professor Goddard, of Clark university, declares would be far greater than that of Lindbergh during his recent Transatlantic flight. A number of tests have proved that it would be quite possible to propel such a rocket an enormous distance beyond the earth's gravity by a series of explosions, and to send from New York to London would be a comparatively simple matter.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 3-1928.

Excitement ran high in the capital city recently when the general assembly convened in the first extraordinary session since 1916. The following four important subjects were included in the governor's call for the special session:

Enactment of a new primary law and amendments to general election law as needed.

Re-enactment of a law fixing the bonding limit of downstate subdivisions and fixing the tax rate of the South side park board, Chicago.

Enactment of law which will permit the Chicago Historical society to erect a $1,000,000 building in Lincoln park.

Appropriation of salaries of two commissioners of the State Supreme court. The offices were created at the last session but no provision was made for their salaries.

Marked by heated argument, the house of representatives, on the first day of the general session, discharged the elections committee, which was slated by administration leaders to consider the primary measures, and voted that the primary law bills be taken up by the house as a committee of the whole. The vote was 88 to 40 in favoring the discharge of the committee.

Of the 24 bills introduced in the senate at the opening session, seven to solve the primary tangle were presented by Senator John T. Joyce, Chicago; sixteen were offered by Senator Roy C. Woods, Chicago, to deal with tax levy corrections and the other by Senator Richard Meents of Ashkum, related to the proposed appropriation for salaries for Supreme court commissions. All of the bills were advanced to the second reading without reference.

The main primary bill introduced during the opening session provides for the nomination of state and other officers and sets the primary election date as the second Tuesday in April. Separate bills define the power of committees, delegates, conventions and officers of political parties and for the election of Presidential electors. It was said that Presidential electors are placed in a separate bill so that if a court finds this provision unconstitutional the finding will not affect the status of main primary laws. Another provides for central committees of political parties and the manner of their election; another for the primary nomination of members of the general assembly.

Thirty bills on the primary were scheduled to be offered in the house and senate, while sixteen bills were necessary to iron out revenue legislation which was rushed through the last session.

Next in importance to the primary law is the downstate bonding power question. The State Supreme court recently held unconstitutional the law passed at the last session which limited the bonding power of the downstate to one-half that of Chicago. The bonding power was expected to be equalized in order to meet the situation.

Five cents was sliced from the state tax rate for 1927 at the annual meeting of the state tax board held recently. The board, composed of Governor Small, State Auditor Oscar Nelson and State Treasurer Garrett D. Kinney, fixed the rate at 30 cents on the hundred dollar valuation, based on the full assessment as provided for in an act of the last session of the general assembly. This rate is equivalent to 60 cents on the 1926 basis. The rate for 1926 was 65 cents and in 1925 it was 85 cents on the hundred dollar valuation. In reality the reduction is six cents, because a new item of one cent for blind relief was added by the legislature.

The board in its formal report stated that it considered the rates fixed will meet the necessary demands and provide a reasonable working balance, taking into account estimated receipts from other indirect taxes, department earnings, interest and fees.

New corn growing champions of Illinois were crowned a few days ago at the corn show of the thirty-first annual farm week at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. Nearly a thousand Illinois farmers thronged the show and adjudged it one of the best ever presented.

The new champions are the Sommer brothers, Pekin, winners of the senior title, and Miss Doris Rentschler, sixteen, Chestnut, the winner of the junior crown.

Competition in the events was so keen and close that the Sommer brothers, as an example, won only by one-tenth of 1 per cent. Education in the selection of seeds was attributed as the main factor in marking a new day in the quality of Illinois corn.

Fighting against an invisible enemy, constructing blockades against danger that the eye cannot see, working to achieve intangible results that are hard to measure, stimulating personal activity against impersonal conditions, dealing always in terms of the future, the state department of public health has closed its most active and perhaps its most successful year under the immediate direction of Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, who points out that 1927 will probably be recorded as the most healthful year in the history of Illinois.

If proper attention is given to a child's teeth during the first twelve years of its life, a lifetime of mouth misery can be averted and the child as it grows older will have one of life's handicaps removed, according to dental specialists at the children's clinic of the University of Illinois College of dentistry in Chicago.

The baby teeth that are shed about the twelfth year of a child's life are the guideposts for the permanent teeth that follow them. If the baby's teeth are well cared for and are straight, there should be no crooked or badly formed permanent teeth. If they are allowed to decay or if they are crooked and not straightened, there is a probability that the permanent teeth will be faulty and will not last through the lifetime of the individual, the doctors in charge of the clinic say.

During the past year the children's clinic has treated 560 children and has completed 348 cases. During the year all of the cases received on an average of two treatments a week for from three to four weeks to be completely fixed up. In the section where crooked teeth are straightened, 229 children were examined, 16 are under active treatment, 19 have their teeth braced to hold them in proper position, 10 have had the braces removed and are still under observation to see that the straightening is successful, and 12 have been dismissed as successfully and permanently straightened.

In the treatment section where cavities are filled and the teeth cleaned, eight student doctors serve two half days each per week for an eight-week period doing the practical work of the clinic. They are under the supervision of practicing dentists who superintend and instruct them in the proper methods of operating.

Dr. P. B. Noyes is dean of the college of dentistry; Dr. Elsie Gerlack is superintendent of the children's clinic; Miss Evelyn Norgaard is instructor in oral hygiene; Dr. B. O. Sippy is orthodontist, and Dr. Mary Newell, instructor in orthodonture.

S. J. Stanard, director of the state department of agriculture, Walter W. Lindley, general manager of the Illinois state fair, and others from the capital city, expected to attend the annual meeting of the Illinois association of agricultural fairs which is scheduled to be held at Quincy, January 18 and 19.

An appropriate program of interest to fair managers was arranged and dates were to be fixed at the gathering for the majority of fairs to be held in 1928 in the various counties of Illinois.

Stillman J. Stanard, director of the state department of agriculture which administers state aid to county fairs, was slated to speak concerning premium offers, and the participation in state funds by fairs that qualify. Carl D. Gross, supervisor of rural sanitation in the state department of public health, was scheduled to speak on "County Fairs and Health." Dr. V. M. Brian, who has represented the department of public health in the educational exhibit service throughout the state was programmed to speak on "Health Exhibits at County Fairs."

Payment of the entire cost of flood protection in the Mississippi valley by the federal government was advocated recently by spokesmen for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States before the house flood control committee. The chamber reached its view through a nation-wide referendum. Frederick A. Delano, Washington, who headed the group which studied the problem, told the committee. About 80 per cent of the membership participating in the vote favored the federal government's shouldering of the total cost, which President Coolidge believes should partly be borne by the localities benefiting.

Trustees for the 1933 Chicago world's fair were granted a charter several days ago, and in the same mail East St. Louis made its bid for the honor of heading the list of cities to participate. With the charter granted the committee in charge, headed by Rufus C. Dawes, can now proceed with definite plans.

Mayor Frank Doyle of East St. Louis planned to present a resolution to his city council to seek approval to his city's representation. Booths for exhibiting industrial activities and commercial affairs will be used by East St. Louis at the fair, it was indicated.

Need for revision of the present tax systems was declared imperative recently by President Earl C. Smith of Illinois Agricultural association, who was the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Sangamon county farm bureau held in the capital city recently.

"The fact that real estate and other tangible properties in the state, representing 40 per cent of the state's wealth, bears 95 per cent of the tax burden makes it imperative that some system be worked out whereby the tax burden would be borne by property and people in accordance with their ability to pay," Mr. Smith said.

Delegations from half a dozen northern Illinois counties came with bands, banners and decorated motor cars to the road meeting which was held a few days ago in Aurora. Gov. Len Small was the principal speaker of the occasion.

Funds finding their way into highway accounts, if the gasoline tax is held legal, will enable Illinois to push its road building campaign at an unprecedented speed, Governor Small asserted. In three years, he predicted, Illinois will lead the nation's commonwealths in good roads.

Lesson for January 22

JESUS AND THE LAW

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:18-3:6.
GOLDEN TEXT—Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets. I am not come to destroy but to fulfill.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing Good on the Lord's Day.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Use the Lord's Day.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Obedied the Law.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Declares the Higher Law.

I. Jesus and Fasting (vv. 18-22).

1. The questions asked (v. 18).

The scribes and pharisees seeing Jesus eating with the publicans and sinners, raised the question as to why He did so. When Jesus heard their question He declared, "They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick." Another question was then asked as to why Christ's disciples did not fast when the disciples of John and of the pharisees did fast? John the Baptist was now in prison, therefore his disciples were mourning for him.

2. Christ's answer (vv. 19, 20).

In explanation He raised the question, "Can the children of the bride-chamber fast while the bridegroom is with them?" He then declared that as long as they have the bridegroom with them they cannot fast. The time will come, however, when they would fast. He is now away. Fasting, therefore, is appropriate.

3. New wine in old bottles (vv. 21, 22).

The bottles mentioned here were made of skins of animals. In the fermentation of the wine there was expansion which stretched the skin. To put new wine in the bottle after it was stretched would cause it to be rent asunder when fermentation took place. The same thing in principle would be realized if new cloth were used on old garments. The teaching designed was to show the foolishness of imposing old customs on the new age.

II. The Disciples Plucking Ears of Corn on the Sabbath (Mark 2:23-28).

1. The charge made against the disciples (vv. 23, 24).

Perhaps they were on their way to the synagogue to worship when they plucked the ears of corn. For this act the pharisees accused them of lawlessness.

2. Jesus defends them against the charge (vv. 25-28).

(1) He cites a precedent (vv. 25, 26).

He showed them that the very law which they charged the disciples with breaking recorded the fact that David the great king of Israel had gone into the house of God and eaten the bread which should be eaten only by the priests.

(2) He shows the nature of a Sabbath law (v. 27).

The Sabbath was made for man, therefore its right use is to be determined by the good of man. The laws of honesty, truth, purity and love differ from the law of the Sabbath and there is no circumstance or condition under which they may be departed from.

(3) Jesus is the Lord of the Sabbath (v. 28).

It was He who instituted it when creation was finished, therefore He had a right to use it as it pleased Him for man's good.

III. Jesus Healing a Man's Withered Hand on the Sabbath (3:1-6).

1. The place—the synagogue (v. 1). Jesus' example shows what He did on the Sabbath. He went to the place of worship. The presence of the man with a withered hand gave Jesus an opportunity to administer a rebuke to the pharisees.

2. The pharisees watching (v. 2).

They knew that Jesus would be interested in this helpless man. They surmised that some work would have to be performed to heal him.

3. The man made an example (v. 3).

Jesus wanted the case to be open to all, so He commanded the man to stand forth where all could see him.

4. The question asked (v. 4).

"Is it lawful to do good on the Sabbath day, or to do evil, to save life, or to kill?" He made the issue clear; He plainly showed them that to fail to do good, to show works of mercy, to save life, is to be guilty of wrong-doing, even of murder.

5. The man healed (v. 5).

Christ healed him by speaking the Word, so they could not accuse Him.

6. The result (vv. 4, 6).

The pharisees were silenced. There was no ground upon which to accuse Him. But since their hearts were bent upon His destruction they sought how they might put Him to death.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Gloomy Outlook

A friend persuaded William Lord Wright, the serial king, to visit a popular cafe. Following the usual custom, he paid a big cover charge and a stiff price for a pitcher of lemonade. The waiter, inclined to be affable and make conversation, remarked that it looked like rain.

"Do you mean the weather or the lemonade?" Bill wanted to know.

Plans Made For Training School For Churches In Southwest Suburban communities

There was a meeting at the Orland M. E. Church Sunday afternoon of representatives from the Churches of Lemont, Chicago Ridge, Worth, Palos Park and Orland Park to plan for a training school for church and community leaders.

It is planned to hold the school at the Orland M. E. Church. It will begin Tuesday, February 21 and continue through the following six Tuesday evenings, with a final meeting the Tuesday of Holy Week. There will be six evenings of classes with two periods each evening making a total of twelve class periods. There will be six courses offered, one in primary work, one in the study of the child one for Sunday school superintendents one in Bible and one in community leadership. It is planned to have teachers from Chicago who are experts in their fields to teach each course.

The school will be run under the supervision of the National Council of Religious Education. Rev. Kennedy will act as Dean of the school. There will be a registration fee of one dollar for each one enrolled. The churches in the various communities will make up the rest of the money needed to put on the school.

Any church in this southwest suburban section is invited to share and take part in this school. It is interdenominational. It is also not limited to churches. Any one may take advantage of this opportunity for instruction. It is a community enterprise.

The first of a series of special evening services that are being planned by a committee composed of Mr. C. Beagley, Mrs. Adelle Cooper, Mrs. Geo. Gee, Jr., Miss Haehnlein and Mr. DeLong, was a decided success.

The feature of the service was a special violin solo by Mr. Royal Glahn and a reading by Miss Hanhelin of the Angelis which is centered around that famous picture by Millet. The service was very effective and all enjoyed it very much. There was a very good crowd out which gave the committee much encouragement.

Next Sunday evening Mr. Harry Baker of Lemont will speak on "Adventures in the North Woods." Miss Myrick and Mrs. Leonard Kay will render the special music.

It is planned to have some special feature and special music each Sunday night. The committee has some very fine treats in store. Watch for the announcements.

Mr. Povenmire is planning to take all the boys of the community to visit the Lincoln Park Zoo next Saturday morning Jan. 21. All boys who wish to go should meet at the church at 8:45 A. M. Each boy should have his carfare to and from Chicago, his lunch and about 25 cents to cover bus fare. Mr. DeLong will take the boys from Worth. The boys from six years up are invited.

The following letter from Rev. Elmer L. Setterlund of Salina, Kansas, former Orland Park M. E. pastor, to the editor is of special interest to our Orland Park readers:

My Dear Mr. Semmler: Let me thank you for your kindness in publishing my note in regard to my wife's recent operation. We have had several letters of sympathy from friends in the Orland territory and appreciate the good wishes which are coming to us. We have also been requested to further state how Mrs. Setterlund's condition is and this is the reason for the second letter.

For the first week Mrs. Setterlund was under the constant care of a special nurse. I am happy to say that we had a nurse who especially adapted herself to Mrs. Setterlund's condition and gave her the best possible attention and care. After the first week we released the nurse and Mrs. Setterlund continued her cruise on the way to the shores of recovery aided only by the nurses "in training" at Asbury Hospital. However, I am glad to say that her care was so good that it could not have been improved upon. Then last Saturday afternoon, at four o'clock, Mrs. Setterlund rolled home in our little Ford and is now finishing her convalescing at 921 S. Fifth Street, Salina, our present home.

She is still confined to her bed but gets up for her meals and is gaining in strength daily. She wishes to be remembered to all of her many friends in the Orland territory, and regrets that she cannot write to each one personally.

I am "sawing wood" every day at the college. This is our last week of the first semester of the present academic year and I can hardly realize that after examinations next week we will have finished half of the school year. How time flies! We hope to spend next summer at the University of Chicago in research work and hope to see some of our friends if we can visit church at Orland Park some Sunday morning.

With best wishes to you personally and to all of our friends, I am, Sincerely yours, Elmer L. Setterlund

P. S. Thank you for the copy of the News-Bulletin. E. L. S.

Tusks are present only in the males of the Asiatic elephants and are only about half as large as those found in African elephants. Buy across the Counter

WHEN you buy across the counter in the stores of this town, you are using good business judgment. Why? There are many reasons, but one of the most important is this:

You can buy what you want at the price you wish to pay! You are not obliged to accept "something just as good," because you are in a position to compare values and make your own selections.

When you trade at home you are helping your friends to help you! And there is no finer thing in life than neighborly co-operation. It always pays—in happiness and satisfaction as well as dollars and cents.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Ave. nue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grand-children, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

TOUCH OF GENIUS ON FELT HATS; NAVY BLUE ONCE AGAIN POPULAR

Some Pretty Felt Hats.

AGAIN the felt hat for midseason and early spring? To be sure! But with a touch of genius that thrills with interest and newness.

One thing that Paris modistes are making a point of this season is to present intricacy under the guise of simplicity. At first glance, the 1928 models suggest the thought "so simple"—which is not the case at all. When it comes to fantastic cuts and folds, new wrinkles and queer twists the new felts are breathtaking.

It is apparent, in the "just arrived" models that the majority of French modistes are still plying the scissors most vigorously, making of felt a plaything when it comes to cutting it in fantastic designs. Also, brims are asserting themselves, which is real news. Some of the new brims are evidently possessed of a "wanderlust." They cut loose at the crown headline and wander up on the crown, forming a trimming as they go or perhaps develop into a tiara flare. Many of these brims have a trick of dropping at the back, fitting into the nape of the neck, and then suddenly developing a tendency to form tabs which entirely conceal the ears.

From close-fitting cap to cloche of medium brim, runs the course of the "first hats" in the new year. The illustration portrays several interesting felts, very smart for immediate wear.

Special attention is called to the cloche shown in the lower right corner of this picture for it indicates the trend of the vogue toward curious new brim outlines. Grosgrain ribbon shows through the slashes in the crown and the same ribbon ties about the head line.

The snug cap centered to the left shows a type of bead embroidery with the bottom of the illustration draped so gracefully to fit the head in this fashionable shade.

Prepare to hear the good news, navy blue registers for a spring debut. When the pendulum swings to navy blue—well, there is simply no stopping it on its onward course.

In yesteryear it was navy blue serge that ruled in the realm of daytime fashions, today all indications are that navy jersey will do the honors both for frocks and for charming ensembles which emphasize three-quarter coats with plaited skirts.

Navy jersey with a metal touch achieved in gold buttons, perhaps a gilded belt and like as not a gold bracelet is a promise of spring.

Huge bows of ribbon are slated as a forthcoming trimming item and many of them will be navy blue. It is navy blue grosgrain ribbon which is so artfully brought down to one side of the frock shown to the right in the picture. It is decorated with novelty steel studs, which harmonize with the grayish blue crepe of which this frock is made. Note also the effective use of graduated tucks which extend from the hemline almost to the yoke.

At a recent Paris opening which introduced many interesting inter-season modes, the vogue for navy with white was foretold in the model which is shown to the left in this illustration. This charming youthful model is of navy crepe with white bands inset with hand fagoting. And this reminds us, fagoting is used in abundance in cabochon motifs which is liked in that it gives a semi-dressy appearance. Felts embossed in alligator effects and some with polka dots are among the very chic showings. The model at the top of this group is of this sort.

Melon shaped sections of felt bound with ribbon, or metal gulfon banding, as you see on the hat shown to the right below contrive to impart a touch of artistry to many a midseason chapeau.

There is a new color called coachman's drab which is very popular in Paris. The very handsome velours at the styling of dainty frocks for the Southland midwinter resorts, both for children and grownups.

Another detail in regard to this Paris frock is the slight circular fullness of the skirt, for you must know that skirts are growing wider and wider. As it is to impress the importance of navy blue upon those who would learn of style trends, the dainty Parisienne who posed for this picture wears exquisite navy kidskin shoes with this frock.

When happiness can be manufactured so cheaply and sell so high, and is always wanted in the market, it seems a pity that more of us do not set up in the business.—W. C. Gannett.

A VARIETY OF MEATS

For those of us who have not yet cultivated a taste for sweetened meats, the following dish may not appeal, when read; but try it, it is very tasty:

Belgian Hash.—Take one-half cupful of prunes, one-half cupful of dried currants, one-half cupful of sugar, one-half a grated nutmeg, salt and pepper to taste, three-fourths of a cupful of vinegar and one-fourth cupful of water. Cook two pig's feet after chopping in the above mixture until the liquid is all absorbed.

Hot Tamales.—Take two pounds of lean beef or chicken cooked and cooled, then chopped fine; one pint of chili peppers, seeded and parboiled; the water changed during the cooking; sift the peppers through a sieve, add one clove of garlic chopped, and salt to taste. Scald well a pint of corn meal in the beef or chicken broth, then spread on corn husks 2 by 4 inches. Roll up, making three turns, fold in the ends carefully and tie securely. Steam two hours.

Meat Loaf.—Take one pound of meat from the round and three-quarters of a pound of fresh pork chops; add two eggs, one cupful of bread crumbs, one cupful of stewed tomato, one teaspoonful of minced parsley, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt and pepper to taste. Stir and mix well, roll into a loaf and bake one hour. Strips of salt pork may be placed on top if desired.

Veal Loaf.—Take two pounds of veal and one-half pound of fresh pork, both chopped; one cupful of bread crumbs, one-quarter cupful of milk, the juice of a lemon and a teaspoonful of the rind, one-fourth teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, pepper to taste, two eggs, a few dashes of cayenne and one-half can of mushrooms. Mix well and pour the liquor from the mushrooms over the loaf, bake often, baking two hours. The sauce to serve with the roast is made from the gravy, adding more of the mushroom liquor.

Stuffed Steak.—Chop a pound of round steak, season well, adding an egg. Prepare a seasoned bread stuffing. Grease gem pans and put in a layer of meat, then one of the stuffing and cover with another layer of meat. Bake in a hot oven until well done. Serve on a hot platter garnished with parsley.

The Important Dessert.

Most people feel that a dinner without dessert is unfinished and unsatisfactory. A simple sweet, even a dish of raisins and nuts is often all that is needed to make a good ending to a meal.

A dessert should be appropriate to the meal with which it is served; that is, a light meal may have a hearty, rich dessert; a heavy meal is best with a light one. A dessert is valued for its decorative effect as well as its food value.

For a decorative as well as nourishing dessert the following will be enjoyed:

Blushing Apples.—Take even-sized juicy apples which will keep their shape when cooked. Core and peel them and put on to cook with a very little water, cook until tender, adding fruit drops of red coloring or a teaspoonful of red cinnamon candies to give color. Sweeten and chill. Serve decorated with halved almonds, and heap a spoonful of whipped cream on each.

Apple Snow.—Peel and cut into quarters about four apples. Cover with boiling water and cook slowly until the water is evaporated and apples tender. Cool, put through a vegetable sieve. Add powdered sugar to taste and fold in as much whipped cream as you have apple pulp. Chill and serve.

Date Pudding.—Boil together ten minutes two cupfuls of water, three-fourths of a cupful of brown sugar and three tablespoonfuls of corn starch. Add one cupful of sliced dates. Mold in sherbet cups. Garnish when turned out with whipped cream and chopped nuts, or bits of cherry and dates.

Jellied Prunes.—Stew one-half pound of large prunes after soaking well in water. Drain and cut into squares. Prepare a dish of lemon gelatin, using any kind at hand; when partly thick add the prunes. Pour into a mold and set away to become firm. Serve with sugar and whipped cream.

Apricot Ice.—Take two cupfuls of canned fresh or dried fruit. If fresh put through a sieve; if dried cook until smooth then put through a sieve; add sugar to sweeten, one-half cupful of lemon juice and the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, the water in which the fruit was soaked, or the canned juice. Mix all but the egg whites and freeze; when partly frozen add the egg whites and finish freezing.

ORLAND

Last Sunday the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira McCord was baptised at St. Michael's church, the name given being Mary Elizabeth. The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cannon was also baptised, name given being Gerald. Rev. Wm. A. Gorey officiated at both christenings.

Those who attended the last church and community night at the Orland M. E. church are no doubt looking forward to the next one.

The next church and community night will be sometime in the forepart of February. The date will be announced later. It is planned to take up some definite church and community problem each time. Last time the problem of the boy in the community and church and community were discussed. This time the problem of community health and parent teachers associations will be discussed. An expert in each field will present each problem. There will also be special entertainment features.

At a later date it is hoped to take up the matter of church and community publicity.

His Accidental End

There are all sorts of ways of putting things, and some sound much better than others. For example, there is the case of the man of whom Lord Coleridge used to tell, whose father was hanged for highway robbery. Some one asked him how his father died. "Sir," said he "he fell from a scaffolding outside Newgate while he was talking to a clergyman."—Youth's Companion.
